We will miss Charles Schulz and Charlie Brown

I heard with great sadness the death of Charles Schulz, the great cartoonist who brought us Charlie Brown.

I came to know this fine man when I served during the Ford administration as the chief librarian for Blair House, guest house of the president. The staff and I wanted to bring in the best of American literature. Besides including science fiction into the collection for the first time, we also brought in Charlie Brown.

This was done at no expense to the taxpayers. I worked for free, along with staffers from the Library of Congress and other agencies, and the books were donated by the authors, which is what Mr. Schulz did.

At the time, Mr. Schulz's book (autographed) was the only book of illustrated humor in the home; but then many would agree "Peanuts" is the best of American humor. Good-bye, Charlie Brown. We will miss you.
